

STEPHEN R. JANACK

Vice President for Marketing and Communications
Director of Communications Services
College of Nanoscale Science and Engineering
University at Albany-State University of New York

Stephen R. Janack is responsible for all internal and external communications for the College of Nanoscale Science and Engineering and each of its affiliated organizations. He oversees development and implementation of CNSE's media relations and marketing strategies, as well as its educational and community outreach initiatives, working with his colleagues on CNSE's senior and executive staff to translate the CNSE vision, mission and objectives into a world-class communication drive.

Mr. Janack also serves as host and producer of CNSE's weekly television program, "NanoNow," which airs in New York's Capital Region on FOX 23/WXXA-TV and worldwide via streaming online video and a podcast on iTunes. "NanoNow" features interviews with leading executives in the education, technology, business and government sectors, along with segments that demonstrate the cutting-edge research at the UAlbany NanoCollege and the growing impact of nanotechnology on society.

Prior to joining CNSE, Mr. Janack served as senior vice president and chief communications officer at the Albany-Colonie Regional Chamber of Commerce, and as president of the organization's Business Services Corporation, a for-profit entity responsible for revenue-generating member benefits. Mr. Janack also served as host of the television program "Tech Valley Report," which aired in Time Warner Cable's Albany Division.

Prior to joining the Chamber, Mr. Janack spent 15 years as a radio and television broadcast journalist in New York's Capital Region. He is a 1984 graduate of St. John Fisher College in Rochester, where he received a B.A. in communications/journalism.
